Terrorism charges laid

► Two of three terrorism suspects appeared in Ottawa court Thursday ► Police not naming the alleged targets, say those will be revealed during court proceedings

► An alleged terror suspect covers his face in the back seat as he is driven by police from the courthouse Thursday in Ottawa.

After a year of surveillance by RCMP, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and police forces in Ottawa, Quebec and London, Ont., three Canadians face charges in an alleged terrorism plot that police say had reaches in Canada, Afghanistan, Dubai, Iran and Pakistan.

Ottawa residents Hiva Mohammad Alizadeh, 30, and Misbahuddin Ahmed, 26, are among those charged. The RCMP said Thursday it believes that Alizadeh is a member of a terrorist group with links to the conflict in Afghanistan.

Police have also charged Khurram Syed Sher, 28, of London, Ont.

"This group posed a real and serious threat to the citizens of the National Capital Region and Canada's national security," said RCMP Chief Supt. Serge Therriault. "Our criminal investigation and arrests prevented the assembly of any bombs and terrorist attacks from being carried out." ● TRACEY TONG

Suspects planned explosives: RCMP

Case reiterates 'serious nature of this threat, which can result in tragic consequences if left unchecked,' says Raymond Boisvert of CSIS

@METRONEWS.CA

One of the people charged with terrorism had taken training that provided him with the knowledge to construct electronic and explosive devices, the RCMP said Thursday.

Police have seized "a vast quantity of terrorist literature and instructional material," including schematics, videos, drawings and books — in addition to electrical components and circuit boards designed for the construction of remote-controlled improvised explosive devices, said RCMP Chief Supt. Serge Therriault at a media conference Thursday. He said the evidence shows the suspects

"had the intent to construct an explosive device for terrorist purposes."

"The threat of terrorism is very real and Canada is certainly not immune from potential attacks," said Raymond Boisvert, assistant director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. "This country has been identified on several occasions as a legitimate target by various individuals who espouse an Islamist ideology."

Although police said an attack was still months away, they moved in on the suspects when they did because they feared the suspects were about to provide financial support to counterparts in Afghanistan to buy weapons to be used against coalition forces and Canadian troops.

Charges

Dr. Khurram Syed Sher, pictured above, was once a contestant on the TV show Canadian Idol. A medical graduate of McGill University, Sher is studying pathology at the St. Thomas Elgin General Hospital.

- ▶ Hiva Mohammad Alizadeh, Misbahuddin Ahmed and Khurram Syed Sher are facing charges of conspiracy to facilitate terrorist activity.
- ▶ Alizadeh is also charged with making or having in his possession an explosive substance with intent thereby to endanger life or cause serious damage to property, and making available property or financial services for terrorism purposes.
- ▶ Police said the accused conspired with James Lara, Rizgar Alizadeh and Zakaria Mamosta.

O-Finally! The train is back

► O-Train has been offline since July 12 ► Connects Carleton students and south-end commuters to the Transitway

STEVE COLLINS/FOR METRO OTTAWA

 STEVE COLLINS
OTTAWA@METRONEWS.CA

After six weeks on hiatus and $5.1 million in major renovations to the system's infrastructure, the O-Train returned to service Thursday.

The O-Train Special shuttle bus kept passengers moving between O-Train stops while the train was out of commission.

The upgrades to tracks, tunnels, signals, bridges, trains and stations were originally supposed to be completed Aug. 15, but unexpected delays in work on the Rideau River bridge drew out the service interruption another two weeks.

The additional delay added to the summer transit woes of Laila Figueiredo, who commutes to work in Gatineau from the Greenboro Park and Ride station.

"It was a little bit upsetting, she said. "Five weeks was long enough ... but I'm looking forward to it being back and enjoying the new ride on the train."

During the renovations, OC Transpo also finished installing new solar-powered ticket machines at O-Train stations, which are designed to jam less frequently than the old ones, and accept credit card payment.

O-Train stats

The O-Train began service in 2001. Some other key numbers:

- The eight-kilometre run carries 12,000 passengers a day from Greenboro to Bayview Station.
- The O-Train logged its millionth kilometre in March.

Even more good news

In addition to the return of the O-Train, OC Transpo reopened the Brookfield crossing to pedestrians and cyclists Thursday.

The Riverside Pathway from Bank Street to Hog's Back will remain closed until October for maintenance by the National Capital Commission.

This year the Classic Air Rallye commemorates a forgotten aircraft of the Second World War: the Westland Lysander.

Built in England and Canada, few Lysanders survived the war but amazingly, there will be three at this year's show.

For Watson, it's a sign of the times

@METRONEWS.CA

It's the first sign of the municipal election season.

Mayoral candidate Jim Watson installed the first of thousands of signs on the lawn of campaign co-chair Mary Pitt in Nepean Thursday.

It was the first day that election signs were permitted.

"We're putting signs out from Fitzroy Harbour all the way to Cumberland and everywhere in between," Watson said.

"We think lawn signs are a great grassroots way of individuals in the community expressing their support for one candidate or another."

"I've always found lawn signs an inexpensive way of getting the message out. Some candidates may have more money and might want to put more money into venues like television and radio.

"I think it shows momentum when the signs go up."

"We'll be doing some of that as well, but we supplement that kind of advertising with grassroots advertising called the lawn sign."

The signs are smaller than ones used in previous elections to reduce environmental impact and cost.

Although he's using "old tried and true methods, like lawn signs, we're very much a modern campaign," said Watson.

"I think we have the best website. It's been visited by over 40,000 people. My chief opponent doesn't have a website up yet. And we're using Twitter, we're using Facebook, Flickr, and YouTube."

Lawn signs 'clutter,' a 'waste': Doucet

At least one mayoral candidate is taking a different approach to campaigning.

The Clive Doucet for Mayor Campaign Team will not use lawn signs in the upcoming Oct. 25 election.

"If people in Ottawa don't know who Clive Doucet is after 13 years, signs on the lawns aren't going to change it," Doucet said Thursday.

This decision is about doing politics differently, a press release from the campaign office stated: "Ottawa does not need piles of non-recyclable materials left behind from tens of thousands of lawn signs."

"Lawn signs are a clutter, a waste of resources and environmentally unsound," Doucet said. "We can deliver a great campaign about positive change for the city in an environmentally-friendly way." ■ TRACEY TONG

Going green

Clive Doucet's green campaign, which kicked off Aug. 10, is also dedicating five per cent of its donations to community groups that are undertaking green energy initiatives.

► "We'll be running on getting Ottawa ready for a different kind of world," said Doucet. "To do that, we have to change the way we grow our city."

► Doucet said he will be unveiling his platform in the next few days. One of the cornerstones of that platform will be getting LRT trains in Ottawa, he says.

► "The fight for us is around the issues," said Doucet. "Signs don't have anything to do with the issues."

On Aug. 29, 2005, hurricane Katrina hit the U.S. Gulf Coast. New Orleans, the jazz mecca, became a site of devastation and human misery. But now the city is back on its feet — tens of billions of dollars later

ELISABETH
BRAW
METRO WORLD NEWS

Patricia McElveen knows no other home than New Orleans. She was born and raised in the city's Lower Ninth Ward, and she remained there when she got married and had children. But on Aug. 28, 2005, she left.

"My family and I followed the city's mandatory evacuation order," she says. "We had reached Texas when Katrina hit the next day. My son called and said 'Your house has 20 feet of water.' It was devastating."

More than 1,400 people were killed by Katrina, which left 80 per cent of New Orleans under water.

Washington called Katrina "probably the worst catastrophe, or set of catastrophes" in the country's history.

"The initial reaction was total shock," recalls Laura Claverie, a magazine writer living in an upscale neighbourhood.

"Here was one of the most beautiful, historic cities in the U.S., and 160,000 homes were destroyed. There were National Guardsmen on every corner, protecting the city. I will love those brave, caring soldiers forever."

Some 25,000 residents unable to follow the evacuation order were housed at the Superdome, a giant sports arena that soon became a centre of human misery when it lost both water and power.

One month after the hurricane, Patricia McElveen and her husband, Wendell, returned.

"The city was gloomy and lifeless," says Wendell.

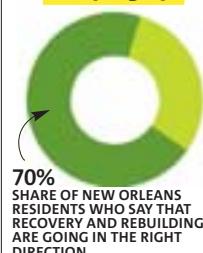

"Nobody knew what to do. What most people outside New Orleans never realized is that the Lower Ninth Ward didn't just Five years and tens of billions of dollars later, New Orleans is a different city.

Eighty per cent of its residents have returned.

In the past five years the average income grew by nearly 14 per cent.

have poor desperate people.

"There were many stable families and business owners as well. Katrina ruined their lives, too."

The couple and their children chose to stay in McKinney, Texas. Many other residents made the same choice: Between 2005 and 2006, the city

"We still have a long way to go in rebuilding many homes and neighbourhoods and our levees, but we're going in the right direction."

And the Lower Ninth Ward? It's trying to transform itself into a cutting-edge green community.

KATRINA HURT ANIMALS, TOO

LEAVING PETS 'WASN'T A GOOD IDEA'

Prof. Leslie Irvine, University of Colorado, is an expert on animal welfare during disasters.

► Leslie Irvine rescued animals after Katrina.

You participated in the animal rescue after hurricane Katrina. What did you see?

The rescue centre I worked in had five barns housing more than 5,000 dogs, along with cats, horses and other animals. During the day it was reasonably calm, but in the evenings the search and rescue team would bring in more animals they had found, and all the animals would get nervous. Hearing several thousand dogs bark is unlike anything else I've ever heard.

How calm were the animals?

Mostly the problem was boredom. Sometimes we gave the dogs bones to chew on, but when they're nervous that can result in diarrhea, which is not a good thing in a crowded barn! I'm not sure the mandatory order for New Orleans residents to leave their pets behind was a good idea. Many of the pets were later adopted to good-willing people around the country, and now their owners want them back. As a result there are many lawsuits over Katrina pets.

Tories keeping a tight lid on the truth: MP

- Liberal MP promises bill to restore long-form census
- CBC: RCMP report concludes gun registry is important

The Harper government has adopted a deliberate strategy of hiding information from Canadians in order to advance a right-wing social and justice agenda, Liberals charge.

Liberal MP John McCallum pointed Thursday to two recent examples to prove the point: The government's decision to scrap the mandatory long-form census and its refusal to release a favourable report on the effectiveness of the long-gun registry.

He called the approach "a triumph of ignorance over knowledge, a triumph of ideology over science."

McCallum said the decision to turn the compulsory long-form census into a voluntary survey is "one of the most visible examples of one of the most fundamental shortcomings" of the Harper government.

He said it's aimed at robbing federal, provincial and municipal governments of the reliable data they need to deliver social programs.

He cited the government's refusal to release the annual RCMP evaluation of the gun registry, which opposition parties claim the government has been sitting on for six months, as another example of Harper's penchant for stifling facts.

Opposition parties maintain the government has been sitting on the report for six months and wants to keep it hidden until after a Sept. 22 vote on Tory backbencher Candice Hoeppner's private member's bill to scrap the registry.

The Ultimate RESORT COTTAGE ON THE LAKE!

Everyone has a favorite memory of spending summers at the cottage. The cottage experience is as Canadian as peameal bacon or real maple syrup and season, I just couldn't get the picture of trailer park boys out of my head. The cottages I liked seemed to cost as much as my house if not more. The more I thought about cottage ownership the more I realized it would mean two houses to maintain and the whole idea was to get away from cutting grass and fixing things as I could spend more time with my children and simply relaxing. I could afford a "Fractional Ownership" type cottage with maintenance fees. I could justify the fees as they do all the work, but one hundred thousand for something I could only use for 4 or 5 months was the amount either, besides we can only play so many games of chess.

As I looked into cottages I found it was quite simple to find something to rent but what about ownership? The thought of being able to escape after a long week at work would be great. What I found is that cottages can be very expensive. My grandfather had told me the story of how each of his three brothers chipped in five thousand dollars and they got a little place with an out house on Chedon Lake up near Arnprior, Ontario. All I could find for twenty grand however was a pop-up tent trailer that we would need to tow around to campgrounds. Camping wasn't going to be an option anyway as campgrounds either. They call them my wife's idea of roughing it was a hotel "Resort Cottages" in Park Model "Homes". Just imagine a small cottage beautifully decorated for only $10,900 to $12,900 and I'd expect to start in something a bit smaller I could get into a perfectly comfortable vacation home for only $39,900.

It turns out that RIM's recreational vehicles come in all shapes and sizes. The models come in one, two and three bedroom floor plans that sleep up to eight comfortably and come fully furnished. You can own one in a resort that has converted it from a trailer park to a Park Model Resort. They are upscale properties that usually have plenty of activities for everyone from heated pools and kids clubs to recreation halls where they host events like wine and cheese parties or themed dinners.

McCreary's Beach Resort on Mississippi Lake was the perfect spot for me and my family. Only 60 minutes from Ottawa with great fishing and loads of activities. McCreary's Beach is one of the best lake front properties I have come across and some of the best family resorts we have ever seen. They made owning a "Cottage" easy and cost effective, without a doubt.

RIM suggests forum ahead of India's deadline

- RIM reiterates it doesn't have 'master key' to data
- Says BlackBerry ban would be unnecessary, ineffective

BlackBerry maker Research In Motion won't compromise on security, but is offering to lead an industry group to work with the Indian government to support its demand for access to information that passes between the smartphones.

"The use of strong encryption in wireless technology is not unique to the BlackBerry platform," Research In Motion said in a statement on Thursday.

"It is unquestionably an industrywide matter."

Waterloo, Ont.-based RIM is trying to reach a solution with India before the Aug. 31 deadline, which would see BlackBerry email and text messaging services banned in that country.

India has said it wants real-time access to the data to meet its security needs. Similar concerns have been voiced by the United Arab Emirates, Saudi Arabia, Indonesia and Lebanon.

RIM is offering to lead a forum with the information and communications technology industry that would work with the Indian government to develop recommendations aimed at "preventing" the misuse of encryption technologies, while preserving the "legitimate" information security needs of businesses.

RIM also said it maintains a global standard for lawful access requirements to data and that "does not include special deals for specific countries."

Sex means success for some women: Survey

► Both parties risk losing respect of their colleagues, says survey ► 15% admit affair with the boss

Apparently, sex with the boss can still help a woman get ahead. But companies and the individuals involved pay a high price, according to new research.

Some 15 per cent of executive women surveyed by the New York-based Center for Work-Life Policy admit to having an affair with a superior.

And 37 per cent of the women believe such liaisons pay off in the form of promotions and other perks, the study also found.

The question was asked as part of a wider study that looks at the role a boss can play in promoting a woman's career by recommending her for key assignments.

The full study isn't due out until later this fall, but centre president Sylvia Ann Hewlett leaked selected findings in her blog this week in the Harvard Business Review online. She was commenting on the impact of a recent scandal at Hewlett Packard Co. on ambitious women.

The company's CEO, Mark Hurd, resigned earlier this month after an HP investigation found he had a personal relationship with Jodie Fisher, a contractor who had received inappropriate payments from the company.

Such scandals hurt all high-achieving female executives if it leads to fewer male leaders taking them under their wing, says Hewlett, an economist, author and director of the gender and policy program at Columbia University.

A third "planetary candidate" is closer to Earth size, he said: about 1.5 times the size of our planet.

The discoveries are the results of the Kepler mission, a spacecraft which has been sent into the universe to try to discover Earth-sized planets.

RCMP destroys illegal poppy field in B.C.

► Mountie says 60,000-plant crop is indicative of high demand in the community for poppy-derived drugs

Mounties have wiped out a field of opium poppies in B.C.'s Fraser Valley in a first-of-its-kind drug bust that's also revealed a much larger problem within the South Asian community.

Police believe the flower pods were meant to make the drug doda, which gives its users an opium-like high and is said to be commonly used by taxi and truck drivers.

Chilliwack RCMP say the illegal crop on almost three hectares was the largest opium-poppy field ever found in Canada and the 60,000 mature plants were almost ready to harvest.

Because it's a crop more well known to Afghanistan than Canada, Cpl. Lea-Anne Dunlop said RCMP investigators knew very little about opium poppies and had to do some research just to obtain a search warrant.

Their next concern was to act quickly, she said.

After gathering their evidence, RCMP hired a nearby farmer in the community, about 100 kilometres east of Vancouver, to plow the crop under. Police will also be watching the field next spring to

Powerful plant

Opium poppies are used to make legal and illegal drugs, including pain killers morphine and codeine, and street drugs doda and heroin.

Doda is made by grinding down the husks of the poppy into a powder. The powder is then used in tea or water and is said to produce a quick high and then a sense of calm.

Hottest year ever? The title will be so cool

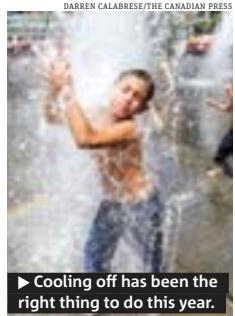

► But La Nina could just blow it, forecaster warns

Canada is on track to have the hottest year on record by far — if La Nina doesn't blow it.

From January through July, it has been 3.5 degrees warmer than normal, says Environment Canada's David Phillips.

That's considerably warmer than the record set in 1998, when temperatures hovered almost 2.5 degrees higher than normal for the whole year across the country.

"Unless we get into a big deep freeze from September on, this one certainly looks like it will be the warmest of all," Phillips said.

► Cooling off has been the right thing to do this year.

The 1998 record was set even though a La Nina formed that year.

This year, the same weather phenomenon developed in July as the waters of the central Pacific Ocean cooled.

La Nina usually brings cooler weather to Western Canada.

But Phillips said he believes it won't have a dampening enough effect to keep 2010 out of the record books.

Phillips guarantees we won't have a winter like last year, when it was four degrees warmer than usual.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Models forecast this year's trend will continue, with Central and Eastern Canada breaking records for the warmest September and October.

Canary isles, ahoy

► Solo sailor aged 14 makes landfall – and plans to stay awhile

A 14-year-old Dutch sailor aiming to become the youngest person to sail solo around the world says she has reached the Canary Islands off north-west Africa.

"Now I'm in the Canary Islands with the first stage of my trip behind me," Laura Dekker wrote on her website.

"It was a great first stage that I can look back on with a good feeling.

"Sleeping, eating, navigating and all the other things on board went well," she wrote.

"I'll have to look at land for a while now, but with the beautiful weather and great view here that will be fine."

Her venture stirred an intense debate about whether young people should be allowed to sail the world's oceans alone.

In the end, a Dutch court ruled her preparations were adequate and it was up to her parents to decide whether to let her make the attempt.

Scientists using cutting-edge technology to explore waters off Indonesia have been wowed by incredible images of marine life on the ocean floor.

Their cameras captured plate-sized sea spiders and flower-like sponges that appear to be carnivorous.

The scientists used powerful sonar mapping system and a robotic vehicle to explore 54,000 square kilometres of sea floor off northern Indonesia, at depths ranging from 240 metres to more than 1.6 kilometres.

Verena Tunnicliffe, a professor at the University of Victoria in British Columbia, said: "The sea spiders ... on this mission were huge. Eight-inches (20-centimetres) or more across."

One animal captured on video looks like a flower, covered with glasslike needles, but scientists think it is probably a carnivorous sponge.

Tired of paying taxes?
Grab an axe and go

Virtually.

In an article published two years ago, I told the story of a young Montrealer who earned $3,000 a month selling virtual dresses and T-shirts to players of Second Life. In this online game, millions of people walk avatars (virtual selves) into nightclubs and other imaginary places. They pay real dollars to buy their avatars a sexy haircut, a little cat, a house ... even a penis!

Meanwhile, "gold farmers" in China spend their days slashing monsters with their swords and stealing their gold pieces in World of Warcraft. These gold pieces are then sold over the Internet to other players who need them to progress in the game. Estimated profit: $2,000 US per day.

Two years later, what has changed? "Second Life has slowed down a bit, but Facebook games like FarmVille are exploding!" says Michèle Blanc, senior partner at Analyweb. Last year, 70 million people (your friends?) spent $500 million US to feed non-existent pigs and decorate their virtual farms.

A parallel economy is growing at a breakneck pace. From $800 million US two years ago, the annual value of goods traded in virtual worlds on the Internet has now reached $1.5 billion. At the current exchange rate of 200 per U.S. dollar, the World of Warcraft gold coin is faring better than most South American currencies.

In this day and age, a three-headed virtual rabbit can be more productive than most human beings. Edward Castranova, an economist at Indiana University and an expert on virtual worlds, has calculated the value of all goods — magic swords, armour, etc. — created and traded by players in the realm of Norrath, a region of the game EverQuest. GDP per capita: $2,280 US. Average hourly wage: $3.42. These figures put the economy of Norrath above those of China and India.

The United States and Canada do not tax flying castles, or dresses made of pixels. "The U.S. government has been trying for the past five years to seek ways to tax these transactions. But the IRS has no rule of procedure for virtual goods," says Castranova. "It's too weird for them, and doesn't fit into any categories."

Thousands of new web entrepreneurs rejoice. For once, bureaucrats put spokes in their own wheels.

Race on to shed specs

► Sony Corp. says 3-D TVs that don't need glasses in the works ► Toshiba made similar claim earlier this week

► Sony Corp. unveiled for the Japanese markets six-models of quick-start Blu-ray players/recorders that can record and enjoy watching 3-D images with those glasses (pictured).

Sony Corp. is working on 3-D televisions that don't need special glasses, joining a race with rival Toshiba Corp., but sees cost and technological hurdles to overcome before they can go on sale.

Toshiba said earlier this week it is working on glasses-free 3-D TVs, although no decision had been made on when they will go on sale.

"Seeing 3-D without glasses is more convenient," Sony senior vice-president Yoshihisa Ishida said Thursday at Tokyo headquarters. "We must take account of pricing before we can think about when to start offering them."

Sony showed its latest 3-D products for the Japanese market, including flat-panel TVs and Blu-ray recorders.

Sony said it plans to be No. 1 in market share in Japan in 3-D TVs and 3-D players and recorders, taking advantage of its position as an electronics maker with a movie studio.

Sony said it will start selling in Japan next month two films and two music videos in 3-D, and planned home software of 3-D theatre releases, including a 3-D Spider-Man opening in 2012.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The specs factor

Mainstream 3-D TVs now on sale, such as those from Panasonic Corp. and Sony Corp., require viewers to wear glasses.

► Store displays But there are already screens that don't require glasses, mainly intended for store displays.

► Low quality They require the viewer to stand in specific spots for the 3-D effect to emerge, and the image quality is much lower than that of screens using glasses.

News in brief

Shell to share oilsands clean up technology

CALGARY. Shell Canada Ltd. wants to share new tailings cleanup technology it recently rolled out at its Muskeg River oilsands mine with others in the industry — no strings attached.

Tailings — a mixture of sand, clay, water and residual bitumen — are a byproduct of the oilsands extraction process and are an environmental concern.

Shell said its technology — called atmospheric fines drying — cuts the time it takes to remove the harmful byproducts, and for the land to be reclaimed to its natural state.

Employee earnings increased by 4%

Canadians have been bringing home more money each week than they did during the economic downturn, when jobs and workers' hours were slashed, but economists warn a return to recession in the U.S. could derail rising incomes.

"My concern is that if we get a double dip (recession) in the U.S., we're certainly going to feel that in Canada, so I think we're in for an extended period where unemployment remains — at best — at or near eight per cent," says Andrew Jackson, chief economist at the Canadian Labour Congress.

"And you will not see significant wage growth with unemployment at that level."

Statistics Canada reported Thursday that the average weekly earnings of non-farm payroll employees rose by four per cent in June from a year earlier to $853.50.

But much of the weekly earnings increases can be attributed to employees on hourly wages working more hours as employers boost output, Jackson said.

During the recovery, wages have increased by about two per cent — just in line with the pace of inflation, Jackson said.

During the recession, employers cut spending on wages and salaries by $9.5 billion resulting in the loss of some 400,000 jobs.

But nearly all of those lost jobs have been made up in a spate of hiring in recent months.

5 MINUTES WITH: GLENN CRAWFORD

Glenn Crawford is chair of the Village Committee, which promotes Ottawa's gay village. He will lead Sunday's Capital Pride Parade as grand marshal.

When did you find out you were getting the grand marshal job and what was your reaction?

I found out several months ago. Honestly, I'm a person who is probably known for talking and I was a bit at a loss for words. I was a bit taken aback by it and certainly honoured.

What do you see as your duties as grand marshal?

Well, the duties are kind of what you make of it. I wasn't given, like, guidelines of things that I had to do. In terms of actually just being in the pace car, the Pride Parade is just about celebrating who you are, maybe an exaggerated sense of who you are, because sometimes we go a little overboard, which is fun. It's a way to kick back and sort of just celebrate being different, and I will definitely look a little different in the parade this year. I'm really excited about it. There's a bit of theatre and excitement that comes with the parade and I have some plans for that.

Are they secret?

Yeah, it's fun to surprise people, and we do have an initiative that our committee has been working on for many years that we are breaking some really exciting new ground on and we will be unveiling that. So that is a bit of a secret. Definitely all will be revealed on Sunday, and I think it's something that the community will be really, really excited about. I'm dying to tell people about it but I'm being good!

Have you noticed a warming trend in gay-friendliness here?

I think that the people have always been friendly here. There will always be opposition or homophobia.

Certainly, over the years I've walked down Bank Street and people have driven by and screamed not very nice things at me out of their car, in frankly a very cowardly way. So those kinds of things still exist, and I think because we have same-sex marriage now and hate crime protection there's almost a complacency or a feeling that we have all our rights, we're safe, we're fine. But the reality is there are still things happening and there will be new challenges. The rights are there but society takes a while to catch up.

Metro Minute with Classic Air Rallye

Take a journey back in time at the Canada Aviation and Space Museum, which is hosting a free drive-in movie night Friday as part of its Classic Air Rallye event.

The museum is screening Captains Of The Clouds, starring James Cagney and Canadian First World War ace Billy Bishop.

Set during the early days of the North American involvement in the Second World War, the film revolves around a small group of Canadian bush pilots who answer the call to arms.

The film starts at 8 p.m. and sets the mood for the Classic Air Rallye Saturday and Sunday.

- With 200 roles under his belt character actor Danny Trejo gets his first starring gig
- Director Robert Rodriguez envisioned this role for Trejo when he was working on the movie Desperado and turned it into a fake trailer for Grindhouse release

After 14 years Machete makes the cut

 NED EHRBAR SCENE@METRONEWS.CA METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Danny Trejo feels like he's been preparing to play the title character in Machete for 14 years — about as long as he's been working with writer/director Robert Rodriguez.

"Robert's been training me for this movie since we did Desperado," says Trejo, who's appeared in eight of Rodriguez's films. "He said, 'Hey, you're perfect for this character. I want to do this movie called Machete.' And that was 14 years ago. And so, you know, 14 years and 780,000 phone calls later — 'When are we doing Machete?' — it was just like stepping into the guy."

"As far as being the lead, the only difference is I got to kiss Jessica Alba."

DANNY TREJO

And from his first role with Rodriguez — as the knife-throwing assassin Navajas in Desperado — Trejo has noticed a common theme in their collaboration: "Basically in each movie, if you'll notice, I have some sharp object," he says with a laugh.

A veteran character actor who's appeared on screen close to 200 times, Trejo gets to finally play the lead in Machete, something he was excited about.

"As far as being the lead, the only difference is

I got to kiss Jessica Alba," he jokes. "It's a little different because usually you show up, you do your stuff and you leave. But now you're on the set every day. You're on the set every day and you have to realize that this is your movie. It's not that your attitude is different or your performance is different. It's that you just help any way you can."

While the idea for Machete came about years ago, the character first appeared on screen as something of a gag. Rodriguez filmed a trailer for the non-existent film as part of his Grindhouse project with Quentin Tarantino, sandwiched between Rodriguez's Planet Terror and Tarantino's Death Proof. For Trejo, filming the movie years after making the trailer was more than a little disorienting.

"Usually you do a trailer after doing the movie, so I thought I was having, like, Alzheimer's," Trejo says. "Did we shoot this movie already?"

And with Machete already being in the public consciousness — the trailer was one of the most popular parts of Grindhouse — the actor and filmmaker found they had a new set of expectations to worry about.

"I sent Robert a text from England, where some guys had tattooed that picture of Machete on their backs," Trejo remembers. "I thought, 'Wow, I hope they like the movie.'"

Arizona law adds a real life element

Writer and director Robert Rodriguez admits he couldn't have asked for better timing for Machete, as it comes just months after Arizona passed its controversial immigration law.

"When you make an exploitation film you always want to have a real issue," he says. "That's how they were always done."

Exploitation films were famous for taking an issue and exploiting it because they could move much faster than a studio. Any hot topic, they could run out and make a movie and make a buck on it."

While immigration has always been a hot-button topic in Arizona the current events have raised the temperature on the situation.

"Just recently this just became more relevant and just gave this movie another layer of entertainment," he says. "It's done in a huge sense of fun. It's supposed to make you feel, 'Wow, some of this is really not far off the mark.' Even though I tried to make it as much made up as possible, you couldn't escape that reality is stranger than fiction."

Reunited

Kevin Spacey and Sam Mendes are reuniting for a trans-Atlantic production of Richard III, producers announced Thursday. Spacey will play the villainous English king in a production of Shakespeare's play directed by Mendes, which is set for an international tour in 2012. The two men last worked together on the 1999 film American Beauty, which won five Academy Awards, including best actor for Spacey and best director for Mendes.

Interesting experiment

The Last Exorcism

Genre: Horror/Thriller
Director: Daniel Stamm
Stars: Patrick Fabian, Ashley Bell, Iris Bahr

Producer Eli Roth (Hostel 1 & 2, Cabin Fever) has claimed that his latest cinematic venture The Last Exorcism was meant to be anything but a rip-off of William Friedkin's immortal 1973 shocker The Exorcist. But if he thinks his film doesn't have its roots firmly ensconced in that classic, he's out to lunch; for just as in The Exorcist, we have a central "holy man" figure having a crisis of faith who is called into action when a little girl is seemingly possessed by some class of demon.

What makes The Last Exorcism different is the framing conceit, a pseudo-documentary, first person camera approach that is meant to immerse the audience into the action and further blur the lines between fact and fiction. It's an interesting experiment it almost works.

• CHRIS ALEXANDER

Lebanon
Genre: Drama
Director: Samuel Moaz
Stars: Yoav Donat, Michael Moshonov

• This 2009 Venice Film Festival prize winner is set during the 1982 Israel-Lebanon conflict. The gimmick: the action takes place entirely within an Israeli military tank, with the outside world filtered video-game-style through the gunner's scope. It's tense and claustrophobic, but not particularly dramatic — and once you get that the tank is a rolling metaphor for the hell of war, it's also pretty redundant.

• ADAM NAYMAN

Flipped

Genre: Comedy
Director: Rob Reiner
Stars: Madeline Carroll, Rebecca De Mornay, Callan McAuliffe, Aidan Quinn

Flipped — Rob Reiner's latest has been billed as a return to form for the director and a companion piece to his Stand By Me. Like that film, Flipped is a coming-of-age ode to youth cloaked in mid-century Americana (the early 1960s). It's nostalgic for nostalgia. There's charm here and some honest observations of adolescence. But there's also a wilful, cloying datedness to the movie — overly stuffed with period detail like an Archie comic strip. It tracks a boy (Callan McAuliffe) and a girl (Madeline Carroll) from 7-years-old to 13, and all the fluctuating emotions in between.

The strength of Flipped is in its truthfulness to humdrum adolescence. It's filled not with extravagant dramas, but instead portrays how seemingly minor happenings take on grand meaning. But it lacks both the darkness and comedy of Stand By Me and its device of flipping every scene to show both kids' perspective drags the film. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Takers

Genre: Action
Director: John Luessenhop
Stars: Chris Brown, Matt Dillon, T.I., Paul Walker

• If you've seen any heist movie before, then you've already seen Takers. The script that somehow required four writers follows every possible genre cliché and then adds some tired cop drama with Matt Dillon for good measure. Admittedly, director John Luessenhop has some impressive action saved for the climax, but it's just not enough to make up for the irritating performances and terrible screenplay (favourite/worst line: "We're takers, man. That's what we do. We take."). • PHIL BROWN thing. Nothing could be further from the truth. We got this footage from the mainstream press' archives. Why that stuff ended up on the cutting room floor of the major networks, I think speaks to one of the larger concerns that the film hopes to address.

The Tillman Story is a remarkably honest portrayal of a difficult story. Though it might clearly be on the side of the Tillman family, the director only leaned that way after a great deal of research.

"I don't think that the job of a filmmaker is to sit and look at an issue and kind of bean count. You know, 'one fact for the Tillmans and one fact for the government,'" admitted Bar-Lev. "My job is to spend enough time with a story to gather an informed opinion. If somebody wants to present a different point of view, I'm willing to hear it. But until I'm convinced otherwise, I'll defend my opinion."

How America treats its heroes

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Director Amir Bar-Lev's latest documentary takes on the controversial figure of Pat Tillman, the polarizing NFL star turned Afghan War casualty who was killed by friendly fire despite what the military initially claimed. Bar-Lev presents Tillman's story and how his bereaved family was mistreated by the same government who made their son a martyr with a disturbing honesty that is sure to bring back uncomfortable feelings about the war.

"The greatest review that we got was when Pat's family told us that they were happy with the film," Bar-Lev told Metro.

Perhaps the most disturbing aspect of The Tillman Story is how much incriminating footage Bar-Lev was able to find. There are even scenes from a congressional hearing in which government officials ranking as high as Donald Rumsfeld lied about knowing the cause of Tillman's death and were not only cleared of taking responsibility, but weren't even properly questioned about the issue.

"None of that footage was difficult to obtain, which in itself is a tragedy," said Bar-Lev. "When people see some of the clips that we have, they'll probably think that we got it from some Deep Throat garage in a paper bag or some-

DILLON'S LACK OF STAR POWER SURPRISING

In Focus

RICHARD CROUSE

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

He is an Oscar nominee, a multiple Independent Spirit Award winner and the star of over forty movies. He can leap frog comfortably from comedy to drama. In this weekend's Takers he plays a cop hot on the trail of some bank robbers. Next he'll be seen yukking it up in Rio Sex Comedy. He can do it all, and on top of that he has at least one IMDB message board titled "Hottest Man Alive," so why is Matt Dillon the forgotten movie star? With credits like his he should be on the a-list, hobnobbing with the Toms — Hanks and Cruise — and Will Smith and yet his brother Kevin, who plays a wannabe celebrity on Entourage, probably has a higher Q score. Here's a look back at why Matt Dillon should be on Hollywood's hot list.

Troubled Youth
Dillon first got noticed play-

Dillon's Films

A selected filmography of Matt Dillon..

- The Outsiders (1983)
- Drugstore Cowboy (1989)
- Singles (1992)
- There's Something About Mary (1998)
- Crash (2004)

ing troubled teens in Over the Edge, My Bodyguard, Little Darlings and Liar's Moon but it was the screen adaptations of three S.E. Hinton novels that made him a star. Tex, The Outsiders (where he shared the screen with Tom Cruise, Rob Lowe and Patrick Swayze) and Rumble Fish made him a teen idol, but also earned him some serious fans as well. Roger Ebert wrote that Dillon has "the kind of clarity, the uncluttered relationship with the camera that you see in only a handful of actors."

He's Really Blossomed

He was typecast as a brooding teen early on but breakout roles in several comedies proved he could more than just a gloomy Gus. In There's Something About Mary he used one of the most all time politically incorrect (but hilarious) pick-up lines to woo Cameron Diaz. Even better is Randy, his character in One Night at McCool's. When nice guy Randy's one-night stand lets it slip that her boyfriend is a killer who might come after them, he doesn't run but in a beautiful bit of understatement says, "It's just the sex and the violence all in one night is a little much."

Wild Things

On the dramatic side he is an Oscar nominee for his work as the racist cop in Crash, an award winner for his realistic portrayal of a drug addict in Drugstore Cowboy and he steamed up the screen in the campy Wild Things. The guy can do it. Why isn't he a bigger star?

► Matt Dillon has done a wide variety of films in his long career in hollywood.

'All comedians have insecurities'

ANNE BRODIE

Joan Rivers jumped right in when she was asked to be the subject of a documentary.

The 75-year-old comedy icon didn't think twice about compromising her privacy or watching her vulnerabilities paraded on-screen for our entertainment.

Indeed, Rivers lays herself bare in Ricki Stern and Anne Sundberg's film Joan Rivers: A Piece of Work, which was shot over 14 roller coaster months in Rivers' life.

At a time when subjects like Anna Wintour and Valentino insist on managing their documentary images, Rivers gave the filmmakers total access.

► The documentary Joan Rivers: A Piece of Work opens next Friday.

Emmy show really wants your attention

- It's time to renegotiate the broadcast rights
- Ratings will be crucial
- Broadcast networks or cable?

When the Emmy Awards air Sunday, more is at stake than whether 30 Rock wins its fourth consecutive best-series trophy, Mad Men its third or Glee its first.

A crucial tally will be the ratings — ammunition for either the big four networks or the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences as the two sides negotiate a new contract for the telecast.

The current agreement, reached in 2002 and expiring this year, created an annual network rotation that brought the ceremony to ABC, CBS, Fox and NBC, and gave the TV academy a huge boost in its license fees.

Now the Emmy show has a chance to prove that it's riding a wave that has lifted other awards broadcasts this year, with viewership up for shows including the Oscars, the Golden Globes and the Grammys.

But what Emmy organizers also might covet is a counteroffer. Eight years ago, cable's HBO made a splash by bidding to wrest away the ceremony with a $10 million annual license fee when the networks were offering $3.3 million.

"Nothing can help your negotiation more than if you have another offer on the table," said writer-producer Bryce Zabel, who was academy chairman and CEO at the time.

"We had a strong argument that the license fee should go up, but it made it easier to achieve with another offer."

Networks ultimately agreed to an eight-year deal with license fees of $4.5 million annually for the first four years and $7.5 million per year for the next four.

The academy and the networks declined comment on current negotiations.

But broadcast executives were surprised at the academy's proposal, given ceremony ratings in recent years, according to two people with knowledge of the talks. The individuals, who lacked authority to comment publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity, said the academy was seeking to keep fees in the $7.5 million range.

So far, there has been no overt interest shown in the Emmys by HBO or major basic cable networks, such as Turner's TNT or TBS.

Also shadowing the Emmy talks is a New York-based competitor that's in the planning stages. The proposed Paley Center for Media honours is aiming for a 2012 launch, possibly in spring when the networks present the following season's programs to Manhattan ad buyers.

An exploratory committee with high-profile studio, network and other industry executives is weighing options for categories and the selection process.

One proposal: giving the public a voting role with an eye toward popularizing the winners.

Such an approach would appeal to the networks, which have seen their top-rated programs such as CBS' NCIS and The Mentalist snubbed on Emmy night, while lower-rated but acclaimed cable shows including AMC's Mad Men and Breaking Bad collect trophies and free promotion.

Idol was really pitchy

Simon Cowell has gone from American Idol judge to a potential headache for the show.

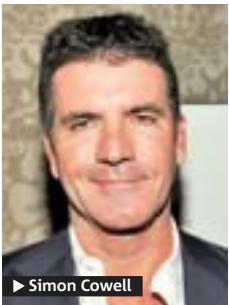

A furor over whether Cowell's British talent show The X Factor electronically altered contestant voices has prompted American Idol to make a pre-emptive strike.

"We have never, nor would we ever, use Auto-Tuning during the American Idol competition," producers of the Fox show said in a statement yesterday, referring to pitch-correcting technology.

American Idol viewers can attest that contestants have been regularly scolded for "pitchiness."

Little Big Town has new album, outlook

If ever there was a group with plenty of reason to pitch it in and give up, it's Little Big Town.

The quartet with the sweet harmonies, uncommon versatility and Job-like bad luck released its fourth album, The Reason Why, this week. Its members have been rocked by a personal difficulties and unfortunate business twists and turns that always seemed to come just as the group appeared to be gaining momentum on its move to the loftier reaches of country music.

Yet as Karen Fairchild, Kimberly Schlapman, Jimi Westbrook and Phillip Sweet approach their 12th year together, they've never felt more positive that all their troubles are behind them and the best times are near. They've been opening for Sugarland in front of big crowds and they hope their fourth record on their fourth label, The Reason Why, will push them to their own headliner status.

"As we wrote and we recorded, that was our goal. Definitely. We pushed ourselves harder than we ever have," Schlapman said.

Capitol Nashville executives feel The Reason Why is special and could help the band join its ranks of recent million-sellers like Lady Antebellum's Need You Now and Darius Rucker's Learn To Live.

"I know that everybody in town wanted this band and we were over the top when we got them because we felt like we had just won the lottery," said Cindy Mabe, the Capitol

"We hope that great things come from this record and we're so happy to be a part of country music."

KAREN FAIRCHILD

Nashville's senior vice-president of marketing.

The Reason Why shows off Little Big Town's best asset — its versatility. Each member contributed songs and took turns on lead vocals, and the album ebbs and flows as each bandmate's personality moves to the forefront.

Little Big Town moves with ease from opener The Reason Why, built on the band's signature four-part harmony, to Westbrook's rock 'n' roll-flavoured Runaway Train to the sassy single Little White Chapel. The song, which sprouted from an inspirational moment in the shower for Fairchild and has become a top 15 hit on Billboard's country music chart, is an unintentional response to Beyoncé's All The Single Ladies.

"It's the redneck version," Westbrook joked.

BEAUTIFUL DAY FOR U2 IN MOSCOW

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS

SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

After weeks of punishing heat, choking smoke from wildfires and withering crops, the Russian drought of 2010 ended Wednesday night.

That's the good news. The bad news is that it ended with a monsoon-level rainstorm just as U2 started their first-ever show in Moscow. With Beautiful Day, naturally.

That U2 was in Russia in the first place was a miracle. While Western bands playing here is nothing new — if memory serves, The Dirt Band was the first back in about 1977 — a production the size of the 360 Tour required intense negotiations all the way up to the diplomatic level.

Hey, you try and get 200 trucks worth of gear into this country, not to mention all the necessary visas and work permits. Suffice to say there were lots of older men in shiny suits in the VIP boxes. One of them was Mikhail Gorbachev, too.

Then there's the matter of U2's position on things like universal human rights, political freedoms, freedom of expression and help for AIDS patients — all touchy subjects for their Russian hosts. How would all that go over?

At first, things seemed fine. Before the show, Bono flew to Sochi for tea with President Medvedev.

Russian media reported they talked about all those things near and dear to Bono's heart. Even then I was surprised to see booths for Amnesty International, Greenpeace and One outside the stadium.

Bold stuff, considering that the police and military presence at the show was large enough to repatriate a breakaway Soviet republic in an afternoon.

Alas, the police soon moved in and shut down all the booths despite previous assurances that they would be undisturbed.

"Unlawful pickets," they said. Two people were apparently arrested. Bono didn't say anything about this from the stage, although he did stick to his regular political and human rights messages without being censored.

The show itself was a two-hour hit fest and if the rain bothered the crowd, they didn't show it. I did feel a bit sad for the woman next to me wearing the $900 suede Prada pumps. That'll learn her.

Moms lusting over the boys of Twilight

Jill Etesse was hooked on the Twilight books the second she cracked the series opener. She ripped through the saga on paper and rented movie No. 1.

Then the madness began.

"I joined the lines of teens for New Moon," said the 38-year-old mom of two. "My husband is deathly embarrassed. Half my friends think I'm crazy."

Etesse, from Leesburg, Va., won't let her eight-year-old daughter anywhere near Team Edward OR Team Jacob, but did she take herself to Eclipse this summer? "Oh yeah."

Is there something, um,

mother nature

With an upswing in grown-ups (yes, women) embracing books intended for teens, are moms thinking younger, or at least enjoying the freedom to express their still-young sides in ways June Cleaver was denied?

icky about moms lustng after the boys of Twilight or other morsels of ripe screen candy? Heck, no, said 54-year-old Toni Downey of Limerick, Pa. We're not dead yet! Downey's more into Matt Bomer, 32, of TV's White Collar at the moment, but "I've had impure thoughts about barely legal boys as well." Strictly the celebrity look-don't-touch variety, she notes.

Eighteen-year-old Taylor Lautner's six-pack? "Mind-boggling," said Downey, who has a 25-year-old daughter. "She likes Buffy as her only vamp thing, and we both thought Pattinson was hotter as a blond in Harry Potter."

Into the light they've come, publicly declaring their sometimes puzzled joy, juggling movie schedules with diaper changes, kid lunches and soccer practices. They're definitely looking forward with younger fans to the last two Twilight movies starting next year.

"I have no idea why it's

"I didn't go with my Team Jacob or Team Edward shirt like some of the women my age did. There were quite a few of them. I didn't talk back to the screen like they did."

CHRISTINA FIEDLER, 30

so appealing to me," Etesse said. "I'm married to a tall, dark and handsome French-Irish guy, but those abs, you know. I'd trade a pair of my Jimmy C's for my husband to have those."

In June, 30-year-old mom Christina Fiedler was undaunted by a tent city of young people on her way in to a special screening of Eclipse at a Los Angeles theatre. She's not all that much older than 24-year-old Robert Pattinson and his mid-20s Cullen kin, played by Kellan Lutz and Jackson Rathbone, but her mom status makes her feel light-years their senior, especially since they're all supposed to be teens on screen.

"What an odd experience to be an adult woman in a theatre full of screaming tweens," said Fiedler, who has a two-year-old son and has blogged about her Twilight habit at Mom Logic.

Is there an age cutoff of appropriateness? A mom code when it comes to ogling young hunks?

Single mom Victoria Martinez, 37, in Hemet, Calif., said yes. She has three boys of her own, ages 15, 14 and 11, and won't let her mind wander to jail bait. The Cullen clan may be playing teens, but they're way legal in life so it's full steam ahead.

"I don't have a husband or even a significant other to worry about when it comes to my man candy crushes," she said, adding that she's a bit of a cougar on the ground. "Taylor Lautner isn't on my list because he's only 18 and I still think of him as Shark Boy."

Dallas hits the home stretch

► Singer-songwriter needs a break after year of touring

 BORZYKOWSKI
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Dallas Green promises that sometime next year he will record another City and Colour album. For now though he's on vacation.

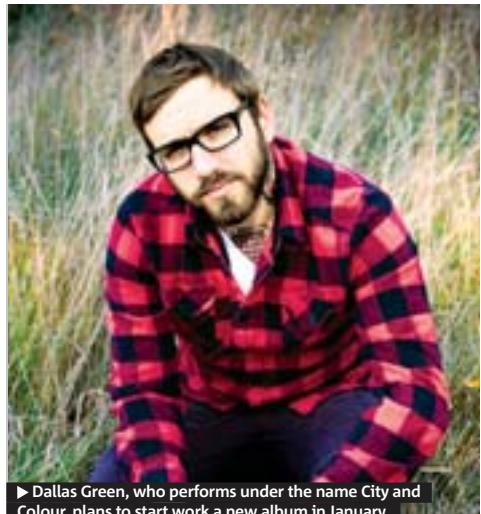

"I've got enough songs for the record," he says on the phone from his Toronto home. "But if I recorded them now I'd have a nervous breakdown. I need some time to myself."

The singer-songwriter, who made it big as the guitarist and vocalist in Alexisonfire and as a dreamy-voiced solo artist, has been on the go almost non stop for the last year. When he wasn't touring with Alexisonfire he'd play City and Colour shows; August was the first month he had off.

All that touring hasn't allowed him to write songs as quickly as he'd like. Green says he needs to spend time crafting a tune — he can't just churn them out.

"I don't understand the people who say they write a song every day," he says. "I never do that. I don't even think it's a good idea to write a song every day — I'd end up writing a bunch of s—."

While he has music for a new disc, he's waiting until January to enter the studio. He says he may write a few new songs between now and then, but he's adamant about not overloading the record with needless tracks.

► Dallas Green, who performs under the name City and Colour, plans to start work a new album in January.

"I don't want to hear a record that has 15 songs on it," he says. "That's asking too much for the listener, especially now when attention spans are so short."

Fortunately, his fans do want to hear more than 15 songs from him, at least when he plays live. In the meantime, he's finished two songs, including a track he wrote about the BP oil spill.

"I was reading a ton about it and it crept into my subconscious and I wrote a song about it," he says.

Teams with Shad

Just because Dallas Green is taking it easy in August doesn't mean he's not working.

He did make it into the studio this month, albeit for an unlikely reason — to work with Toronto-based rapper Shad.

"I'm a huge hip-hop fan and had a secret dream of being and R&B singer," he says. "And he helped me live out my dream."

The pair recorded two songs — Shad raps and Green sings. The songs won't appear on the next City and Colour disc, they're likely release it as a 12-inch two song vinyl, and on iTunes, instead.

Best of fall fashion reads

► Autumn is almost here ► Get ready for fashion week season with these sartorial books

KENYA HUNT
& RICHARD PECKETT
STYLE@METRONEWS.CA

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Just in time for the upcoming collections, three major fashion books are due to hit stores this fall.

Blow by Blow by Detmar Blow and Tom Sykes (Harpur Collins)

Arguably the most anticipated of the bunch, Blow by Blow is a biography of the tragic fashion icon written by her husband Detmar Blow and Tom Sykes. The book will cover her life from the beginning up until her suicide and include moments from her legendary career, which included stints as Anna Wintour's assistant at American Vogue, fashion director of Tatler and the impetus to Alexander McQueen's career.

Manolo's New Shoes by Manolo Blahnik (Monacelli Press)

► There are plenty of fashion-related books on the horizon to get you ready for the runway.

Manolo's New Shoes, by the man himself, features 130 drawings of his work in addition to written contributions from Suzy Menkes, Amy Fine Collins and Grace Coddington, to name a few. Blahnik will be signing copies of the book at Liberty of London during Fashion's Night Out.

Luella's Guide To English Style by Luella Bartley (Fourth Estate Ltd.)

A former journalist, Luella

Bartley returns to her roots with Luella's Guide to English Fashion. As the title suggests, it explores Britain's great fashion moments from cords to Kate Moss. The author explains it best: "My aim is ... (to show my unerring appreciation and devotion to those contrived subtleties, and that blatant contrariness that makes British women so staggeringly adept in the art of expression through style..."

New Fall Service

On Sunday, September 5, new schedules go into effect on most routes to reflect the increased demand for service in the fall, along with numerous routing improvements, some of which resulted from the Transplan public consultation process earlier this year.

Fall Service Highlights

- 18 Route 18 will be extended west to Carlingwood, Monday to Friday, via Scott, Churchill, Richmond and Woodroffe. This extension will provide improved connections for west end residents to Carlingwood and downtown, and to rapid transit service at Westboro, Tunney's Pasture and Bayview Stations. This extension will replace Route 159.
- 22 Route 22 will have two additional trips each in the morning and afternoon extended to Montmire at Blackburn Bypass.
- 60 Route 60 will be revised slightly to operate north of Shirley's Brook via Marconi to Maxwell Bridge at March Road, replacing Route 162. An earlier trip will also be added to accommodate early morning commuters. Service will be removed from a small section of Shirley's Brook and Helmsdale, but residents will still be within walking distance of Route 60.
- 61 An earlier trip will be added to Route 61 to accommodate early morning commuters.
- 94 Route 94 will have expanded hours of service, with trips added in the early morning and late evening. Some early morning trips will be revised to operate between St. Laurent and Train Stations via St. Laurent Blvd., Industrial, Trainyards, Belfast and Tremblay.
- 95 Route 95 early morning trips will be revised to operate between St. Laurent and Train Stations via St. Laurent Blvd., Industrial, Trainyards, Belfast and Tremblay.
- 97 Route 97 will be expanded to operate 24 hours a day, and from the Airport, Monday to Friday.
- 99 Route 99 will serve the new Leitrim Park & Ride lot on request in order to minimize delays to the route. Customers using the lot can request that northbound buses serve the lot by pushing the "request stop" button on the bus stop flag pole. In the southbound direction, customers wishing to get off at the lot, simply ring the bell prior to the stop and the bus will turn into the lot. This change will be effective later in September when the lot opens near Leitrim and Albion.
- 101 Route 101 will be extended along Solandt, east of Legget, to serve the Hewlett-Packard building.

105

Route 105 will have four trips added in the morning peak period to accommodate the increased number of riders to Gatineau.

122

Route 122 will be revised to operate from Trim Road via North Service Road, Jeanne d'Arc and Champlain to/from Place d'Orléans instead of via Regional Road 174. This routing will provide a connection to the new Cité collégiale campus and bring all-day service closer to new residential areas along North Service Road. Revised Route 122 will also serve Taylor Creek Industrial Park, replacing Route 193 with more frequent service.

Travel time to Place d'Orléans will increase slightly for customers boarding south of St. Joseph, but those heading downtown still have the option of transferring to Route 95 at Trim Park & Ride lot.

Route 122 will replace Route 130 service on Jeanne d'Arc east of Champlain and will provide residents with a new connection to Route 94 service along Innes Road.

130 Route 130 will be shortened to operate to/from Place d'Orléans via Champlain and Jeanne d'Arc, providing customers with a faster, more direct trip. Service on Jeanne d'Arc east of Champlain will be provided by revised Route 122 described above.

Special service to Carine Wilson Secondary School, along Jeanne d'Arc, will be provided by revised Route 671, while service to St. Matthew will be provided by new Route 697.

159 Route 159 will be cancelled and replaced with an extension of Route 18 to Carlingwood, Monday to Friday, as described above. Route 18 will follow the same routing between Westboro and Carlingwood as Route 159, but will offer additional connections to Tunney's Pasture and downtown and will operate more frequently and with longer hours of service.

162 Route 162 will be cancelled and replaced by an extension of Express Route 60, as described above. Service will be removed from a small portion of Helmsdale and from Terry Fox east of March Road.

171 Route 171 will no longer travel on Kilbirnie south of Blackleaf, which will be served by expanded Route 177 described below. South of Marketplace, the frequency of service will be reduced from 30 to 60 minutes during off-peak periods and on Saturdays to correspond more closely with ridership levels. See Route 177 below for supplemental service south of Marketplace. Service on Route 171 north of Marketplace will be unchanged.

177 Route 177 will be expanded to provide new all day service, Monday to Saturday, to the communities of Half Moon Bay and Stonebridge West. Residents will have a shorter walking distance to transit and connections at Marketplace to rapid transit service and other local bus routes. During peak periods, service will operate approximately every 30 minutes, and during off-peak periods, buses will run hourly.

Route 177 will be revised to operate in a one-way loop as shown on the map, with a peak period extension to Kilbirnie at Kilmarnock. During off-peak periods, all trips will be extended from Marketplace to Fallowfield Station as a Route 171 (customers can simply remain on the bus). Service on Dundonald will be temporary until new roads are available.

184 Route 184 will be extended into the new community west of Eagleson Road to reduce walking distances to peak period service for new residents. Route 184 provides a connection to rapid transit service and downtown at Eagleson Park & Ride, as well as connections to Hazeldean Mall and Kanata Centrum.

Service will be removed from a small section of Eagleson Road and rerouted via Romina and Fernbank. In the future, as the community grows and roads are available, service will be extended along Templeford and Cope.

190 Route 190 will be rerouted from travelling through the CSIS complex to travel from City Park via Ogilvie to Blair Road.

193 Route 193 will be cancelled and replaced by revised Route 122, described above, which will continue to provide a connection to Place d'Orléans. Service on St. Joseph Blvd. west of Tenth Line and on Centrum Blvd. will continue to be provided by Routes 120, 135 and 136. Service on St. Joseph Blvd. between Taylor Creek and Tenth Line will be removed, but customers in this area will be within walking distance of Routes 120, 122, 135 and 136.

Revised Early Morning Service

Improvements will be made to early morning service, which will be revamped to replace the 800 series of routes. Routes 824, 825, 829, 830, 835, 837 and 873 will be cancelled and replaced with new earlier trips on existing regular routes for a more improved, reliable service.

Labour Day

On Monday, September 6, a Sunday schedule will operate, so only those routes that normally run on Sunday will be in service. The DayPass will be valid as a family pass. Holiday schedules are available at octranspo.com, and OC Transpo Sales Centres and the Information Centre will be open to serve you.

Ne-Yo ordered to pay damages

- R&B singer and booking agent to pay $156,000 for blotched concert

A Maryland judge has ordered R&B singer Ne-Yo and his booking agent to pay more than $156,000 in damages because the performer failed to appear at a 2008 New Year's Eve concert in Washington state.

Anne Arundel County Circuit Judge Philip Carroll ordered the payment Tuesday after a four-day trial in late July and early August.

Promoter Kenyohn Clark sued Ne-Yo, whose real name is Shaffer Smith, and promoter Mike Esterman, who is based in Maryland. The judge ruled in favour of Clark, who claimed that Esterman misled him and failed to return a $95,000 deposit.

Court documents show Ne-Yo testified at trial that he knew in his "heart of hearts" that the deposit should have been returned.

That's the day that co-panelist Walters returns to the air after taking the summer off to recover from open-heart surgery.

The show also marks the start of the 14th season of The View.

Other guests scheduled that week include former Secretary of State Colin Powell and actor Danny DeVito.

Besides Walters, The View stars Joy Behar, Whoopi Goldberg, Elisabeth Hasselbeck and Sherri Shepherd.

Naomi Campbell knows exactly how she likes her food.

The supermodel recently shocked other customers while dining with Leonardo DiCaprio and Bar Refaeli at a restaurant in Capri when she brought out her own condiment, according to Page Six.

"She couldn't indulge in food until her boyfriend's bodyguard brought over her own salt and pepper shakers," a source says.

Campbell's rep was happy to clear things up, saying, "It wasn't salt and pepper, it's her Jamaican hot sauce."

CAN SHE PROVE HERSELF?

Lindsay Lohan may be out of rehab early, but she's not completely free just yet. The new judge in her case, Elden Fox, has confined Lohan to her home until Nov. 1, where she will be subject to random drug and alcohol testing twice a week, according to TMZ. If any substances are found in the actress' system, it's back to jail for 30 days. "She is serious about her sobriety," Lohan's lawyer, Shawn Holley Chapman, told the judge. "She looks forward to proving to the court that she's moving forward in a positive manner." • METRO

"God, I wanted to punch her, she would just not drop the youth thing," Barrymore tells the London Daily Mail about a prying reporter that had been interviewing her earlier that day. "I'm actually really proud. I know I made a lot of mistakes, but they in turn were my life lessons. But yeah, man, I wanted to rip this woman's face off. ### Camel milk: A hump of health

There are close to 20 million camels around the world producing an average total of 5.4 million tonnes of milk a year. Containing 10 times more iron and being three times as rich in vitamin C than cow's milk, camel milk is becoming an increasingly popular alternative just as much in the western world as in the Middle East. According to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations the anti-bodies and high mineral and vitamin content in the milk may help ward off diseases including cancer, HIV, Alzheimers and hepatitis C and diabetes. ► Shown is a pork chop prepared with a special sake marinade by Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto, right, at his restaurant Morimoto in Napa, Calif.

Liquor is quicker for thrilling grill

► What's Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto's barbecue secret ingredient? ► A sake-spiked marinade, of course ► Boozy abounds in marinade options

Like many other chefs looking to add a little thrill to the grill, Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto heads to the liquor cabinet. Because rum, tequila and other liquors all do a fine job of getting meat ready to face the fire.

As Elizabeth Karmel, known for her grill skills, puts it: Never marinade your food in something you wouldn't drink.

"I cook a lot with booze. It makes everything taste better and really gives food a fabulous depth of flavour," said Karmel, executive chef of Hill Country

Barbecue Market and the soon-to-open Hill Country Chicken, both in New York City. "Food is so much about fun and who wouldn't want a tequila sunrise marinated chicken, right? And so many of the flavours in a tequila sunrise cocktail are the same flavours that we would use in, for example, a marinade."

Morimoto, who appears on the Food Network's Iron Chef America (he also was a star of the original Japanese Iron Chef show), demonstrated his techniques recently at his new restaurant on the Napa riverfront.

"I cook a lot with booze. It makes everything taste better."

He sprinkled sake over pork loin, stabbing the pearly pink meat with chopsticks and then immersing it in a marinade including mirin, a type of rice cooking wine, and sake.

And don't worry, the alcohol cooks away in the heat. This also means that when you're done you can pair the dish with whatever you like, including wine.

Michael Paley, chef of Proof on Main in Louisville, Ky., takes a locavore approach to liquor. He brines pork loin overnight in a bourbon-based brine.

Being in Louisville, "we're fortunate to be surrounded by some of the best bourbon producers in the world," he said.

You don't want to use top-shelf booze for the marinade, of course. Save that for what you pour for yourself.

Matchings

So how do you match liquor with meat? Karmel usually uses lighter alcohols and citrus flavours with white meats and more robust alcohols and flavours with darker meats.

► "But that said, one of my favourite marinades is a Jack Daniels and coke marinade that I use on a pork chop," she said.

► Other flavours she likes are vodka-based marinades for fish, pork, beef or even grilled fruit, and rum-based soaks for grilled fruits, summer veggies, shellfish, tuna, chicken or pork.

Ingredients :

- 30 ml (2 tbsp) olive oil
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) minced fresh ginger or 5 ml (1 tsp) ground ginger
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) minced fresh lemon grass or 5 ml (1 tsp) dry shredded
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) extra-dry vermouth
- 10 ml (2 tsp) soy sauce, or to taste

Wie fires hole-in-one en route to lead

Michelle Wie didn't need to do her happy dance to feel great Thursday.

The Hawaii native drove in the second hole-in-one of her pro career on the way to a 7-under-par 65 that made her the first-round leader at the CN Canadian Women's Open.

Wie, 20, raised her hands in the air and got a high-five from playing partner Cristie Kerr after the ace on the 190-yard, par-3 11th hole at the St. Charles Country Club.

After her first hole-in-one in her rookie season at last year's McDonald's LPGA Championship, the six-foot Wie did a dance.

"I did a little shimmy after I made it in at McDonald's and it got replayed one too many times and (TV sportscaster) Scott (Oake) made fun of it a little bit too much," Wie said.

"So (I) just decided

Tiger shows his old stripes at Barclays

● Wife

since his divorce ● Shares the lead with Vaughn Taylor

In his first tournament since his divorce, Tiger Woods finally looked like the No. 1 player in the world Thursday at the Barclays when he opened with a 6-under 65, his lowest score of the year, to share the lead with Vaughn Taylor.

It was Woods' first time leading after any round on the PGA Tour since the Tour Championship last September.

"It's exciting to hit the ball flush again," Woods said. "It's something I've been missing all year."

He didn't miss much at Ridgewood Country Club. Woods hit all but one fairway and putted for birdie on all but two holes.

And while he hit his driver only twice, they were two of his best shots of the day — including on the 291-yard fifth hole, where his drive landed pin-high and settled 15 feet away.

Was it just a coincidence that his game showed up so soon after his marriage was dissolved?

"I can't really say that's the case," he said. "As far as golf, it was nice to put it together."

Woods and Taylor had a one-shot lead over Australian Adam Scott, Brian Gay and Ryan Palmer.

Phil Mickelson made only one birdie for a 72.

Even at 1-6, Lions remain confident

► Team doesn't let record get it down ► Printers slated to return

Without confidence the B.C. Lions wouldn't have much.

It sounds strange that a team tied for the worst record in the CFL would feel good about itself, but that's the attitude the Lions (1-6) are taking into their game against the Calgary Stampeders (6-1) Friday night at Empire Field (TSN, 10:30 ET).

"Why should we lose confidence?" quarterback Casey Printers, who will get the start against Calgary after missing four games with a knee injury, asked Thursday. "If you lose confidence, then you will tank it all the way."

"Being 1-6 doesn't show the character of this football team, it doesn't show what we really are. It's just the fact we have not outscored people. That's the only difference."

It was pointed out to Printers that in the world of sport, outscoring people is rather important. Sort of like firefighters find it important to put out fires.

Printers said outscoring clubs can convince a team "you are better than maybe what you are." He argued the Lions' losing will build character that will be important later in the season.

"We have lost games," Printers said. "Actually it is going to help us down the stretch to have lost games like we have. It's going to be good for us."

Before his injury Printers had completed 50-of-88 passes for 591 yards, two touchdowns and two interceptions. His 56.8 per cent completion ratio is the lowest in the league.

Canadian squad experienced

► Julian de Guzman has been selected by Team Canada.

Canadian soccer coach Stephen Hart has announced a strong roster for exhibition games against Peru and Honduras.

Just how much he is able to use that talent Sept. 4 against 39th-ranked Peru in Toronto and Sept. 7 against No. 46 Honduras in Montreal will depend on Hart's negotiations with his players' clubs.

For example, Hart has selected captain Dwayne De Rosario, star midfielder Julian De Guzman and steady defender Nana Atakora from Toronto FC, which has games in Dallas on the 4th and Chicago the 8th and is struggling to secure a playoff berth.

Hart elected not to further weaken Toronto's defense, leaving Adrian Cann out of his squad.

"We still have some things to work out with the club," Hart told a conference call Thursday.

"And more than likely we will see how we can help each other on this."

"Other European clubs have asked for the same sort of concessions on their players," he added wryly.

"These things have to be considered."

FIFA has cleared Sept. 3-7 for international matches, but MLS is proceeding as usual and European clubs will no doubt want their players back in time to be ready for weekend matches that follow the international dates.

Canada is riding a seven-game winless streak since defeating El Salvador 1-0 in July 2009 at the Gold Cup.

The team is 0-5-2 since then, has been outscored 14-3 and has dropped to No. 101 in the FIFA rankings.

Hart tried to bring top prospects David (Junior) Hoilett and Teal Bunbury on board for this camp, but both players said they wanted to focus on securing their club position.

Still Smoking?

Understand The Dangers To Your Oral Health!

Smoking is costly in more ways than you might realize. For starters, its impact on our health-care costs is enormous. The Province of Ontario claims that tobacco use costs our province $1.6 billion annually for healthcare.

The recognized dangers of smoking including heart and lung disease cannot be denied. Smoking is the #1 cause of illness and premature death in Ontario with about 13,000 fatalities every year.

But, did you know that tobacco products are also harmful to your oral health, and that even occasional smoking can contribute to serious oral health risks?

Studies by the American Academy of Periodontology show that tobacco use may be one of the most significant risk factors in the development of gum disease. Moreover, following periodontal treatment or any type of oral surgery, the chemicals in tobacco can slow down the healing process and make treatment results less predictable.

While smoking may look chic, sophisticated and glamorous (especially to the younger members of our community) in part because of the many movie, music and sports celebrities depicted using tobacco products, there is nothing glamorous or sexy about bad breath, stained teeth, the increased severity of gum disease, oral lesions or oral cancer; all of which can result from the use of tobacco products.

Loss of taste, mouth sores, gum recession, facial wrinkling and bone loss have been found by researchers to occur more often in people who use tobacco products.

Here's hoping that the recent $50 billion lawsuit against tobacco manufacturers by the Province of Ontario to help cover healthcare costs, together with a quick visit to our dental office for a check-up will give you the motivation to really try to quit smoking, once and for all.

We think you'll discover that a bright, clean, healthy smile will give you good reason not to smoke again.

Yours for better dental health,

Aries March 21-April 20 Your latest big idea may be a bit far fetched for some people's liking but that won't stop you trying to put it into practice.

Taurus April 21-May 21 The Sun in Virgo will encourage you to do something special, something that gets you noticed by the right people. But don't get carried away: stick to what you are good at.

II Gemini May 22-June 21 Hopefully you have got your thinking head on because something wonderful is about to happen and the quicker you react the more you will get from it.

Cancer June 22-July 22 Be extra careful today when traveling and socializing. It's okay to be confident and enthusiastic but don't fall into the trap of believing that nothing can possibly go wrong — because that's the moment it most likely will.

Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Friends and colleagues may not approve of what you are up to but since when have you let that kind of thing hold you back?

IV Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Something positive will happen today but it will have a negative side as well. Fortunately, the Sun in your sign will give you the confidence to face up to the bad as well as the good.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You are thinking deeply about something that up until now you have taken somewhat for granted. That's good, because you of all people need to understand that "good" and "bad" are not absolute terms.

III Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Get rid of the old so you have space for the new. That is the message of the stars for you today and if you follow it there is no limit to what you can do.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If you break the rules you will pay the price — so don't break them. Even a Sagittarian has to toe the line now and again and on the work front especially you are up against forces that cannot be beaten. Be smart.

V Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Everything you say and do has a ripple effect on the world and if you bear that thought in mind today you are less likely to say or do something that hurts other people.

VI Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Don't waste time lamenting what might have been because the only thing that matters now is what is going to happen next. Aquarius is supposed to be a forward-looking sign, so think of the future.

VII Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Do you really need to let everyone know what you are up to? You stand a much better chance of success today if you keep your aims and ambitions to yourself. ■ SALLY BROMPTON
